Bit bland and uninteresting.. Really a great RPG game and has been really well done.The combat brings back the old days and the old RPG games really.This game is just a piece of art i recommend you buying it. It's a good story,I wonder to know--What's the next?. One word, bad. Amazing graphics but the gameplay is not fun at all. You can't move around, you're stuck to a position as if it was a regular arcade shooter.

There's absolute no reason for you to buy this as other games, including free ones such Rec Room, have a better shooting mechanic.

Avoid this.

I'm♥♥♥♥♥♥♥♥♥♥I spent money on it.. The Concept Is Good.Just need a more Players,but good job developer :D

A must for all fans of roman antiquity, like myself.

I've read countless books on roman history, and also on the history of the city of Rome itself. The simulation is set in Rome of the year 320 AD, when Rome had reached its zenith with regard to buildings. At that time, it was basically become complete, and had all the buildings we know today. Maxentius and Constantine added the last buildings during that time. Not long afterwards, 100 years later, the decline began, and all those wonderful monuments were lost.

But fortunately we can now experience them in VR!

Ok, the simulation has some technical issues, I'd say that it is quite hardware intensive for one. Everything runs smoothly on my rig, except for this game on highest settings. And the graphics could be better.

But honestly, I don't care so much, because walking around, exploring, reading about the history of the different buildings, marvelling at the sheer size of them, is just an impressive experience, so that I forget the technical issues.

I can absolutely recommend this game to any fan of Rome or roman history.. This has been the best game in the history of games, maybe ever.. It's pinball with a Worms skin.. The art here is of high quality, though gameplay wise the game's disappointingly casual and shallow. We just play with trajectory visualised on screen and throw to hit more baddies with less balls, using rebounds and scenery. Good for mobile only.
